

New Dental Equipment

A-dec recently introduced the Military Bun Headrest. The headrest was developed for military personnel who wear their hair in a bun. The improved design helps alleviate patient comfort as well as aid providers by allowing for improved patient positioning over conventional headrests. The newly unveiled headrest is 'non-articulating' with a vertical adjustment. It is available in seamless or sewn options and all upholstery colors. At this time the headrest is only compatible with the 311 and 511 chair models. A-dec is asking that customers allow for a 6-week lead time when ordering. The Military Bun Headrest is available by ordering part number F84J-249 and sells for $425.00 (suggested retail) and $225.25 (government). Shipping is available to FPO/APO addresses. Shipping charges vary by location and method selected.

Premier® Dental Products Company recently introduced the ComfortView™, a lip and cheek retractor that provides even retraction of the lips and cheeks for buccal and gingival access simultaneously. The manufacturer claims that the ComfortView™ offers maximum visibility and access to working areas for numerous dental procedures, without the need of a second pair of hands. The anatomic design with cushioned lip-supports purportedly ensures patient comfort during short and long procedures and facilitates placement of the saliva ejector. The retractor and lip-support cushions are both autoclavable at 273°F/134°C. ComfortView™ retractors are available in two sizes: universal and small for $47.45 (suggested retail) (two per box). Contact your local dental supplier for government pricing.
